What does donating PCs to schools have to do with monopolistic practices by Microsoft? Is this a token slap on the hand and then let them go there monopolistic ways? I'm a staunch support of the Republican party but feel betrayed by Ashcroft/Bush in letting Microsoft off the hook here. Having the OS bundled with all of the apps from the same company is bad for the consumer, no matter who the company is. The only solution is to separate the OS from the Apps side of the business. Then, some real competition can occur which will be better for the consumer and small businessman.
